

Cry At Sight Of Dying Yank And Plead To Go Into Action

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Rome, June 4 (Delayed) (AP) — This cradle of the western world rocked tonight with the high wind of freedom, stirred by the Fifth Army and thousands of Italian partisans flaunting red flags.

Behind a screen of Roman volunteers who were hammer and sickle armbands and waved old firearms, American forces drove from suburban Centocelle to the Tiber river while half smothered with kisses and roses.

The German Wehrmacht, which once swore that Rome was an open city, fought futilely in the ancient streets to delay the American thrust.

Wherever the Americans moved forward today against hit-and-run Nazi armored forces they found Italians—of all ages and degrees of poverty—ready to die for "the liberation."

"Why were you so long coming? We expected you four months ago," said some of the partisans.

But others lying dead across German machineguns they had tried to seize barehanded, or waiting in unwhispering silence for their wounds to be bandaged, asked no questions.

I saw a 10-year-old boy carrying ammunition for his elder brother on sniper patrol. A stubby-bearded, gray-haired peasant in his middle fifties begged to be put into action. A dark-haired girl with a bandolier insisted "me partisan too."

By military standards the battle for Rome was merely a heavy skirmish with the objectives temporarily being to secure the Tiber bridges. From just behind the leading tank, however, I found the struggle as hard on the senses as getting hit between the eyes with brass knuckles.

TAKE UNUSUAL RISKS

Several tanks and one heavy self-propelled gun held up our armor for seven hours at a point five miles outside Rome. But the Allied commander accepted unusual risks rather than bring down a devastating fire on areas where civilians might be sheltering or cultural treasures harmed.

As the final push sent General Sherman tanks clattering through Centocelle's alleyways and green fields, their machineguns drove scores of German snipers from cover. Italian partisans rode the American tanks or preceded them like game beasts.

"I'll bet there are enough Fascist party badges in the Tiber today to make the fish sick," said one officer.

Near the San Lorenzo rail yards in Rome the partisans shrilly warned of a German 88 about 200 yards behind the next corner. Light tanks swerved and hit it from the rear while weeping mothers murmured blessings, kissed the hands of the tank destroyer crewmen and lifted up their children to be kissed on the cheek.

WAINS OF DANGER

Within a few seconds after the first tanks crossed under the arch of Porta Maggiore, one of the gates of Rome, the avenue ahead was filled with what seemed all of the population of Rome. Crowds in order to elude our hands waded through water from a water main broken by the Germans in destroying a Fiat factory.

As we passed the basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore, Romans from upper apartment windows shouted a warning that a German scout car was ahead.

We were proceeding down the Via Nazionale in front of the Bank of Italy—one block from the Roman forum—when a German heavy machinegun suddenly began firing. My driver, Pfc. Kenneth Kopylin of Huron, S. D., headed straight into the entrance of a big store. When the shooting stopped we saw the wrecked scout car ahead with two Germans dead and another dying with blood gushing from his chest.

SEIZE NAZI CAPTAIN

A tubby German captain in new field gray uniform stood against the wall, the prisoner of two sightseeing French officers who had surprised him in a truck on a side street.

Italians shrieked curses at the German as he blinked owl-like through horn-rimmed spectacles.

They cried at the sight of a dying American soldier.

Moonlight shone through a gauzy mist as our infantry silently, in Indian file, encircled the forum and the Palazzo Venezia, where Mussolini's balcony hung empty.

Lieutenant Robertson (address ungiven) commanding one of the leading platoons, stationed men before the Palazzo Venezia and the Vittorio Emanuele monument after a sharp and bloody street fight a block away.

ALLIES CAPTURE ROME

TO OPEN FIRST LABOR CAMP AT CROSS KEYS INN

The first of three special dormitories to be operated in this county during the summer and fall by the Adams County Farm Labor committee for girls and boys brought to this county "from heavily populated centers in Pennsylvania" for farm and orchard work will be opened at the Cross Keys Inn within the next 10 days. It was disclosed today by Jennings B. Collins, field secretary for the Farm Labor committee.

Two other special labor "camps" will be opened later—probably about July 1 at the Lee-Meade Inn and in the grade school building at Biglerville.

Girls At Cross Keys

Only girls will be quartered at Cross Keys, Mr. Collins said, and estimated that about 150 can be accommodated there. The Lee-Meade Inn and its surrounding cabins will be used to house from 100 to 150 additional helpers while the Biglerville school building will accommodate about 100 boys. Whether boys or girls will be assigned to the Lee-Meade inn has not yet been decided.

Collins said that requests from farmers and fruitmen already received at his office show a need for "more than 500" laborers to help with the care and harvest of crops of peas, cherries, beans, tomatoes, peaches, and apples. More requests are being received daily, he added.

One of the first jobs to be assigned the first workers to be brought here from urban areas, where they are now being recruited by other county Farm Labor Committee offices, will be the thinning of peaches, a task already underway in some county orchards.

Need More Help

It is likely, it was indicated, that the first contingent of girls to reach Cross-Keys will number about 50 but that the group will be steadily enlarged as the demand grows.

Collins emphasized that the help being imported into this county from other parts of the state does not diminish the urgent need for all available help from countians themselves. "This imported help is to supplement and not replace our own local labor," he pointed out.

5 ARRESTED ON SERIOUS COUNTS

On information filed by Private Robert Dietrich, of the Gettysburg substation of the state police, three women and two men were arrested Saturday afternoon and evening on warrants issued by Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore. The arrests were made by Cpl. C. F. Tenke and Private Dietrich. The defendants face serious charges—in one instance with an additional count of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl.

The defendants are Mabel Hollinger, Biglerville Star Route; Annie Day and Robert Livingston, same address; Maurice Hiltbride, Railroad street, and Helen Jones, of Butler township. Annie Day and Livingston are in jail but the others are free under $300 bail on each charge for their appearance at hearings this evening at 7 o'clock before Justice Baschore.

The additional charge involving the minor is against Hiltbride.

Brothers Meet In Italy After 2 Years

Two sons of Francis J. Cole, Biglerville R. 1, who had not seen each other in two years, recently spent a day together in Italy, according to word received by their father.

Cpl. Albert Arnold Cole and Pfc. Gerald P. Cole entered the service more than two years ago and their recent meeting was the first during that time.

Two other sons are also serving overseas. Sgt. Paul Cole is stationed somewhere in northern Ireland and Cpl. Francis Cole, Jr., is stationed in England.

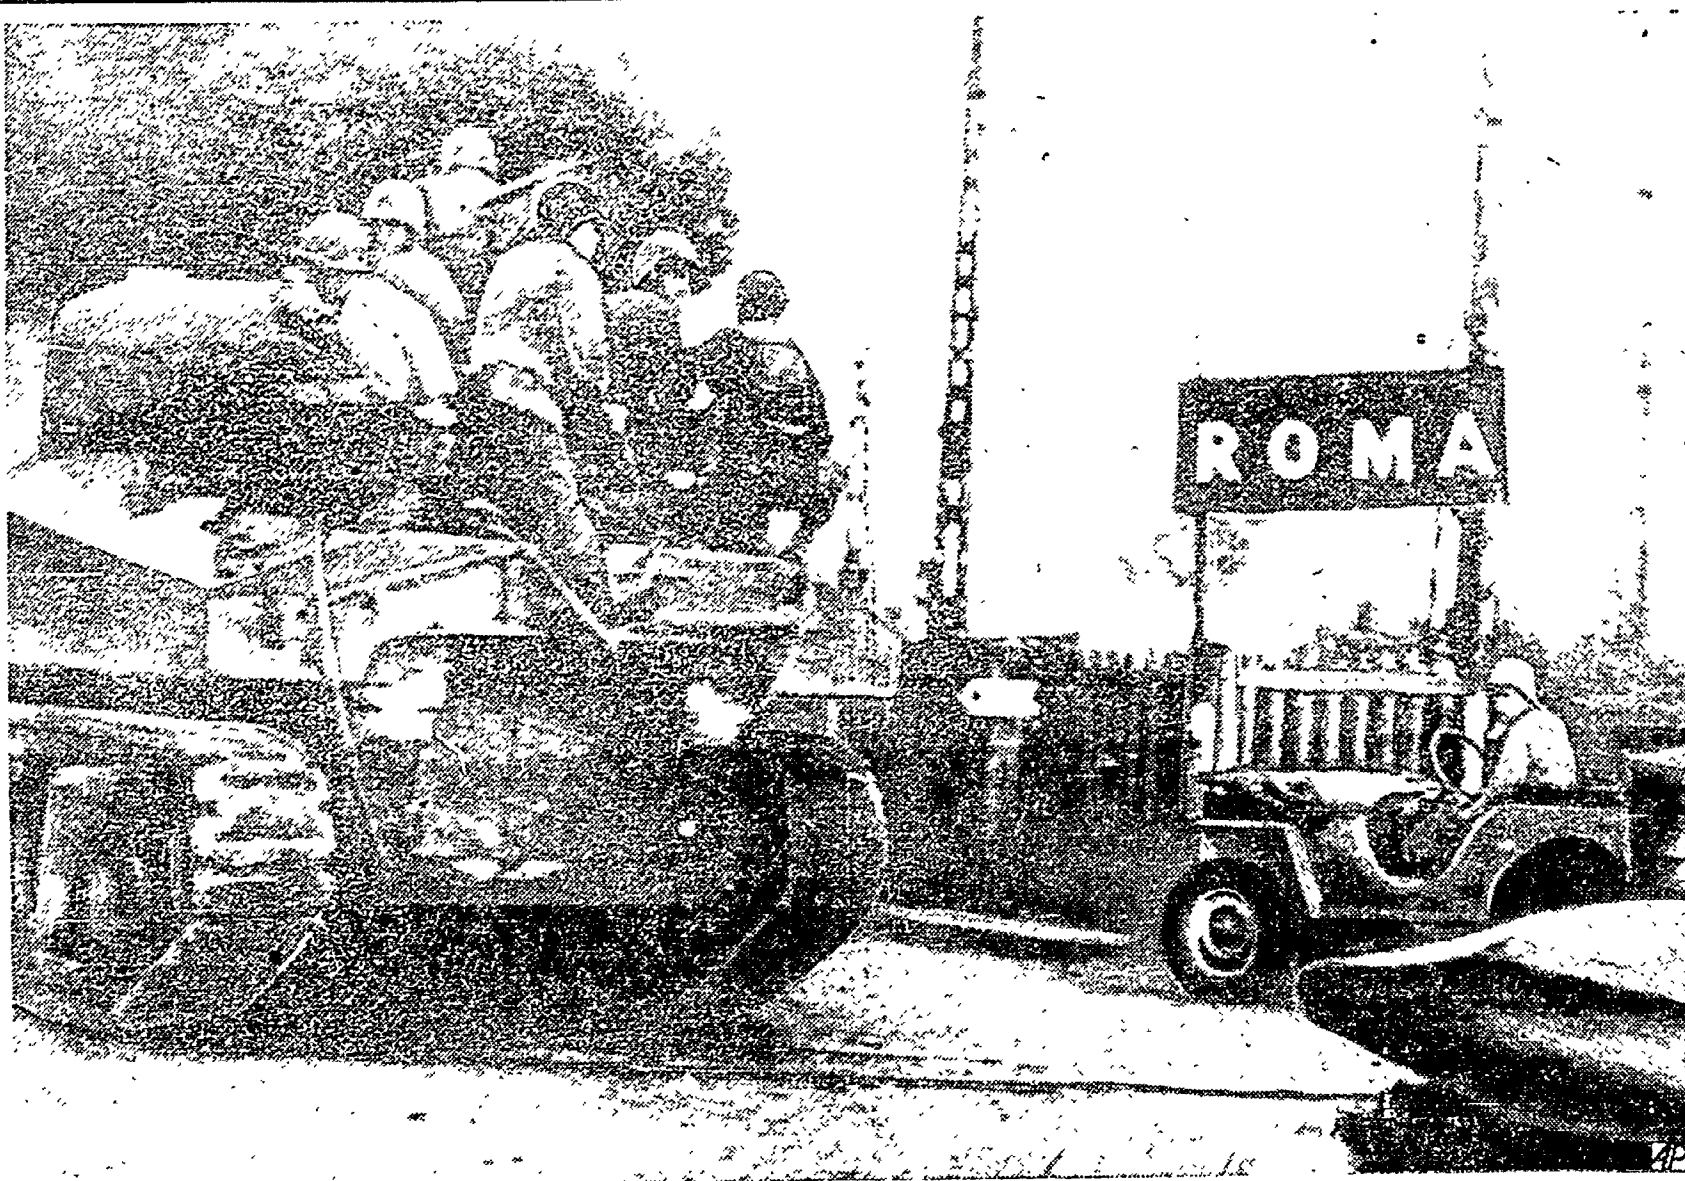

COUNCIL TO MEET

The borough council will hold its June meeting this evening at 8 o'clock at the engine house. Notices have been issued for the session by the borough secretary, Mrs. Anna B. Drechs.

Weather Forecast

Mostly cloudy; little change in temperature; Tuesday warmer.

BRUCE THOMAS IS DECORATED FOR HEROISM

Bruce W. Thomas, a radio technician first class in the United States Naval Reserve, formerly of Biglerville and a son of Mrs. Nabel Thomas, 100 Baltimore street, has been awarded a special citation by Admiral C. W. Nimitz of the U. S. Navy for "heroism and outstanding performance of duty as a technician on a U. S. submarine during war patrols during which time over 66,000 tons of enemy shipping was sunk and damaged."

The citation came with the presentation to Thomas of the Navy and Marine Corps Medal.

The citation set forth that Thomas "By his expert knowledge, kept the equipment functioning at all times; and by his coolness in operation was of the utmost assistance to the commanding officer in tracking and destroying the enemy."

Second Citation

"His conduct throughout was in keeping with the highest traditions of the naval service."

"This is the second citation Thomas has received for service with the Pacific fleet."

Thomas, who has been in the service for more than two years, is a former Biglerville high school student. Before entering service he and his father, now deceased, operated a poolroom and bowling alley in Biglerville.

German Satellites And Wavering Neutrals Now Realize Fate Of Berlin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, June 5 (AP)—American diplomats viewed the fall of Rome today as speeding the grand assault on Hitler's Europe and confronting Axis satellites and wavering neutrals over the world with clear evidence of the fate destined Berlin.

Happy at the capture of the Italian capital, original seat of Fascism, these officials earnestly examined reports on the Balkans and other European areas for signs of reaction to this latest great war development even as President Roosevelt prepared a 15-minute radio broadcast summing up this government's official reaction.

FDR On Air Tonight

The broadcast, over all major networks, is set for 8:30 p. m. Eastern War-time, tonight.

The President was expected to emphasize the symbolic importance of the Italian conquest and to bear heavily upon its political significance.

It has long been a theory of diplomats and political leaders both here and in London that the day the Allies marched into Rome would be the real beginning of the end to neutral and satellite support of Germany throughout Europe.

At the same time military authorities and international political experts grappled with two tough problems stemming directly from the military triumph. Admittedly more difficult was the problem of rushing food supplies, medical equipment and clothing to the population of the city.

Information available here was that the people had suffered severely at the hands of the enemy who removed all portable supplies even though the city itself had escaped the devastation of a siege.

King May Retire

The other task confronting directly the Allied command of General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, and indirectly the Washington, London and Moscow governments, was that of reorganization of the whole Italian regime headed by King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The king promised weeks ago that he would retire when Rome was liberated. His son, Crown Prince Umberto, will take over in his place as a sort of regent.

Badoglio is expected to continue as chief of the government, at least for a time. His task will be to recruit from the patriot political forces which he may find in Rome support and numbers for his government.

$800 DAMAGE IN 3-CAR CRASH

One person was injured and damage estimated at about $800 was caused in a three-car collision Saturday evening about 10 o'clock on the Lincoln highway in New Oxford. State police from Gettysburg investigated and will charge Clyde A. Smith, New Oxford, one of the drivers involved, with reckless driving before Justice of the Peace C. S. Straley, New Oxford.

Private George Ackerson, who investigated, said Smith apparently fell asleep at the wheel as he drove east allowing his car to veer across the highway and sidewise the west-bound car of C. M. Wolf, Harrisburg road, Gettysburg warehouseman.

After the first collision the Smith machine continued east and struck the car of R. Roy Barnes, Hanover, which was parked along the north side of the road. Smith suffered severe lacerations of the scalp and body bruises and was taken to the Hanover hospital for treatment.

FIFTH ARMY THUNDERING AFTER BOCHE

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Naples, June 5 (AP)—The powerful Fifth Army thundered across the Tiber toward northern Italian horizons in pursuit of the 10th and 14th German armies today—with hardly a look at captured Rome, ancient seat of western civilization fallen a prize to Allied troops after nine months of sacrifice.

Last ditch German rearquards died within the shadow of the Roman Forum and in the streets of the government quarter in bitter clashes as Italian partisans, bareheaded and wearing hammer and sickle insignia fought hand to hand with Fascists and Nazis in a brief battle for liberation.

The Italian populace cheered American and Allied infantry and tank teams as they threaded the city's streets, rushed to kiss the bearded and grimy liberators and with shrill cries warned of ambushes ahead.

Some of the Romans died in the city's closing hours of German domination—victims of machineguns they tried to seize almost barehanded.

Germans Violate "Open City"

But despite the sporadic clashes, which took place even though the German high command had pretended until the last that Rome was an open city, the Italian capital with its store of cultural and religious treasures apparently came through unscathed for the most part.

Police officers said all was quiet at the Vatican; where the Pope has been a virtual prisoner of German bayonets since last September. A Berlin broadcast said Baron Von Weizsaecker, German ambassador to the Holy See, "has left his residence in Rome, Villa Bonaparte, and moved to Vatican City." Other diplomatic missions of the tripartite powers will move to Vatican City namely those of Japan, Hungary, Slovakia, Romania and Finland.

(British correspondents in Madrid said the Pope spent Sunday in prayer and in consultation with Papal officials during the hours of violent liberation of the city. The Swiss guard has been doubled about Vatican City to prevent an influx of refugees.

Expect King To Resign

(German broadcasts said Allied diplomatic representatives to the Holy See already had left the Vatican precincts for their old apartments in Rome.

(King Vittorio Emanuele was expected to hand over his power to Crown Prince Umberto at a formal ceremony in keeping with his promise of several months ago to act when the Allies entered Rome.)

Although first reports from Rome were scanty concerning damage in the city, a number of demolitions were carried out by the Germans. Dispatches said the Fiat factory had been the scene of one such demolition, while efforts also apparently were made to wreck gas, electric and water utilities.

Allied headquarters announced at noon the occupation of Rome by the Fifth Army last night, and thus was realized one of the main objectives when Gen. Sir Harold Alexander started the huge Allied offensive May 11.

The other main objective, the destruction of the German 10th and 14th Armies, remained to be carried out, and towards this objective the Fifth and Eighth Armies pressed today.

Fighter-bombers hammered away at the fleeing German columns, leaving congested highways to the north littered with dead and wounded and smashed vehicles.

The Fifth Army tore off and chewed up additional chunks of the disorganized Nazi forces which had tried vainly to stem the advance on the Italian capital long enough to hold open an escape route for hard-pressed troops in the shredded defense line south of the city.

Wreck 1,200 Trucks
The danger to Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's forces still facing (Please Turn to Page 4)

"We have destroyed parts of two German armies, the 10th and 14th, and I doubt if the 14th is any longer capable of fighting. We have taken 20,000 prisoners, wrecked the German armies and have captured and destroyed untold quantities of enemy battle equipment."

The radio said Clark then told Italian Rome representatives that he was pleased with the condition of the city, regarding both public utilities and the city's clean appearance.

Earlier, the Algiers radio said Clark had issued a special order of the day to his troops declaring "it is the immediate task of the Fifth Army to pursue the retreating enemy and destroy him."

German Satellites And Wavering Neutrals Now Realize Fate Of Berlin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, June 5 (AP)—American diplomats viewed the fall of Rome today as speeding the grand assault on Hitler’s Europe and confronting Axis satellites and wavering neutrals over the world with clear evidence of the fate destined Berlin.
Happy at the capture of the Italian capital, original seat of Fascism, these officials earnestly examined reports on the Balkans and other European areas for signs of reaction to this latest great war development even as President Roosevelt prepared a 15-minute radio broadcast summing up this government’s official reaction.
FDR On Air Tonight
The broadcast, over all major networks, is set for 8:30 p. m., Eastern War-time, tonight.
The President was expected to emphasize the symbolic importance of the Italian conquest and to bear heavily upon its political significance.
It has long been a theory of diplomats and political leaders both here and in London that the day the Allies marched into Rome would be the real beginning of the end for neutral and satellite support of Germany throughout Europe.
At the same time military authorities and international political experts grappled with two tough problems stemming directly from the military triumph. Admittedly the more difficult was the problem of rushing food supplies, medical equipment and clothing to the population of the city.
Information available here was that the people had suffered severely at the hands of the enemy who removed all portable supplies even though the city itself had escaped the devastation of a siege.
King May Retire
The other task confronting directly the Allied command of General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, and indirectly the Washington, London and Moscow governments, was that of reorganization of the whole Italian regime headed by King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio.
The king promised weeks ago that he would retire when Rome was liberated. His son, Crown Prince Umberto, will take over in his place as a sort of regent.
Badoglio is expected to continue as chief of the government, at least for a time. His task will be to recruit from the patriot political forces which he may find in Rome support and numbers for his government.
$800 DAMAGE IN 3-CAR CRASH
One person was injured and damage estimated at about $800 was caused in a three-car collision Saturday evening about 10 o’clock on the Lincoln highway in New Oxford. State police from Gettysburg investigated and will charge Clyde A. Smith, New Oxford, one of the drivers involved with reckless driving before Justice of the Peace C. S. Straley, New Oxford.
Private George Ackerson, who investigated, said Smith apparently fell asleep at the wheel as he drove east allowing his car to veer across the highway and sideswipe the west-bound car of C. M. Wolf, Harrisburg road, Gettysburg warehouseman.
After the first collision the Smith machine continued east and struck the car of R. Roy Barnes, Hanover, which was parked along the north side of the road.
Smith suffered severe lacerations of the scalp and body bruises and was taken to the Hanover hospital for treatment.

COUPLE MARRIED AT FORT MEADE

Bernetta K. Lott, 2 York street and Sgt. Herbert D. Laughlin, Williamstown, son of Joseph Laughlin, Greencastle, were united in marriage Friday evening at 6:30 o’clock in the post chapel at Ft. George G. Meade, Maryland. Col. F. C. Reynolds, chaplain, performed the double-ring ceremony.
S. Sgt. Hilbert E. Paul, Ft. Geo. G. Meade, and Mrs. Harvey Warner, West High street, sister of the bride, were the attendants.
The bride was dressed in blue with white accessories. She wore a corsage of red rosebuds. Mrs. Warner was dressed in green with yellow accessories and wore a corsage of yellow daisies.
Following the ceremony a wedding party was given by Mrs. Warner at the Peace Light Inn with more than 50 guests attending.
The couple will make their home at 2 York street. Sgt. Laughlin is now on a 15-day furlough.

Clark Out To Destroy Foe

London, June 5 (AP)—The Naples radio said Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark of the Fifth Army in a speech to his corps commanders had declared “I doubt if the 14th (German Army) is any longer capable of fighting.”
“It is a great day for the Fifth Army,” Gen. Clark was quoted as saying on the capture of Rome. “French, British and American troops have made it possible, and I want to thank Gen. Eaker (Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, air commander, who spent some time at the Gettysburg Airport) for his air support.”
“I would like to say a word in memory of the men and women of the Fifth Army who have made the supreme sacrifice.”
“We have destroyed parts of two German armies, the 10th and 14th, and I doubt if the 14th is any longer capable of fighting. We have taken 20,000 prisoners, wrecked the German armies and have captured and destroyed untold quantities of enemy battle equipment.”
The radio said Clark then told Italian Rome representatives that he was pleased with the condition of the city, regarding both public utilities and the city’s clean appearance.
Earlier, the Algiers radio said Clark had issued a special order of the day to his troops declaring “it is the immediate task of the Fifth Army to pursue the retreating enemy and destroy him.”

Allied headquarters announced at noon the occupation of Rome by the Fifth Army last night, and thus was realized one of the main objectives when Gen. Sir Harold Alexander started the huge Allied offensive May 11.
The other main objective, the destruction of the German 10th and 14th Armies, remained to be carried out, and towards this objective the Fifth and Eighth Armies pressed today.
Fighter-bombers hammered away at the fleeing German columns, leaving congested highways to the north littered with dead and wounded and smashed vehicles.
The Fifth Army tore off and chewed up additional chunks of the disorganized Nazi forces which had tried vainly to stem the advance on the Italian capital long enough to hold open an escape route for hard-pressed troops in the shredded defense line south of the city.

“VIVA YANK”
New York, June 5 (AP)—The Allied entry into Rome received its crowning touch today when a soldier stood with one of his comrades on the marble balcony overlooking the famous Palazzo Venezia where Mussolini used to harangue the Italian people and made a speech about the fallen dictator, NBC said.
A cheering crowd of Italian men, women and children stood below and although they didn’t understand a word he said they laughed and cheered and waved flags.

FALL OF ROME PROVES ALLIES CAN WIPE OUT NAZI VANDALS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Ejection of the Nazi vandals from the Eternal City will be accepted the world over as a guarantee of Allied ability to demolish Hitler's fortress Europe—truly a propitious introduction to the D-Day which will mark the final assault.

That seems to me to be the outstanding aspect of this grand achievement by the arms of civilization. The moral effect will be tremendous. It's specific and overwhelming answer to Der Fuehrer's wild cry of yesterday:

Empty Mouthings

"The year of the invasion will bring Germany's enemies an annihilating defeat at the most decisive moment."

Three years ago, or even less time, such a declaration from the master gangster would have made many peoples cringe. But today, with his shattered legions fleeing northward from Rome before the hotly pursuing Allies, the harsh gutters which once terrified the timid are just the empty mouthings of a beaten Herr Schickelgruber.

It's worthy of note that once again Hitler has proved himself to be without respect for his own word. He had declared that German troops were not occupying Rome. Yet Allied forces had to fight their way into this city for whose preservation all civilized people were praying. Fortunately there seems to have been small damage done to the capital, according to reports thus far.

The recapture of Rome satisfies one of the two major objectives of the Allied offensive in Italy. The other was the annihilation of German Field Marshal Kesselring's armies.

Pile Roads With Dead

How well the Allies will succeed in the grim task of destroying the enemy is still to be determined. They were pursuing columns from the Nazi Tenth and Fourteenth armies northward from Rome today and continuing to take a bloody toll. The Allied air force was piling the highways with dead Germans and shattered equipment.

Some 20,000 prisoners had been taken during the 25-day old onslaught. The total of the great number of Germans killed or wounded is something which Kesselring himself can't know at this time.

Five German divisions—perhaps more than 50,000 men—have been virtually annihilated. Several others have been shattered. The greatest slaughter may be going on at this moment of debacle. Those troops which haven't yet retreated past Rome towards the north are in dire danger of being trapped. The position of the German forces which have been holding between Rome and the sea is particularly precarious.

Nazi Strength

Whether Kesselring will have enough strength left to make a stand on the Rimini-Pisa line, 160 miles north of Rome, depends on what happens on those awful highways as his men flee from death. That probably would be the line he would choose under normal circumstances, since it would guard the approaches to the French Riviera and the Balkans. He may keep on going to the main German line of the Po river.

A big question which must already be in many minds is whether the capture of Rome completes another section of the Allied pie-saw puzzle of attack on Hitler's fortress Europe, thus enabling a further operation to be undertaken. It's possible, of course, that there may be several subsidiary offensives before D-Day itself arrives.

TOKYO CLAIMS ASSAULT WILL "SEVER" CHINA

By WILLIAM PHIPPS
Associated Press War Editor

The Japanese war octopus is running against ever-heavier Allied air blows on five of its far-flung tentacles but Tokyo radio said today (Monday) an offensive which will cut China in two and foil American strategy, "is ready."

Allied aerial successes were reported in new assaults in New Guinea operations in the southwest Pacific, against the Kurile islands in the North Pacific and on Truk in the Central Pacific.

In the vital China theater where Chinese troops are trying to stop the Japanese advance on Changsha in Hunan province American airmen harassed the invaders.

Slight Allied Gains

And in the India-Burma theater an Allied operational summary said "overwhelming air superiority" was a major factor in placing those campaigns in favorable positions before the monsoons curtailed progress. Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten announced gains of 200 yards in bitter fighting for Japan's Myitkya base in north Burma and Japanese withdrawal from Mamsun at the western end of the north Burma front.

While the Tokyo radio talked of Japan's readiness "to launch the most formidable offensive ever against the Allies," Nipponese troops edged closer to Changsha. The invaders' main force was 40 miles east-northeast of the city, another 25 miles north and a third 50 miles northeast.

But in northern Hunan the Chinese recaptured Anshang in their drive on the big Japanese base of Yochow, 55 miles east. In Hunan province, 400 miles north, the Chinese pressed on toward Japanese-occupied Loyang from captured Sungshien, 45 northeast. Other Chinese troops in Yunnan province crossed the Shweli river, pushing to within 12 miles of the Japanese base of Tengchung, in their drive into northern Burma.

Truk Blasted

American bombers from the southwest and central Pacific hit Truk another "one-two blow" and other American planes carried their kuriles offensive into the fifth straight day, hitting Shumushu, Paramushiro and Matsua. Japan ventured 70 planes in combat over New Guinea and Truk and lost 30.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur mounted a new offensive in an attempt to wrest the important airfields from the stubborn Japanese defenders of Biak island in the Schoutens.

PHYSICAL EXAMS

The Gettysburg draft board sent two busloads of men to Harrisburg this morning for final physical examinations preliminary to their induction into the armed forces. The busses left Gettysburg shortly after 7 o'clock.

MAP PROJECT NEARS CLOSE
The federal War Mapping project, which has used the Lee-Meade inn here for headquarters for its mapping work extending over this section of southeastern Pennsylvania since early last October, is bringing its work to a close with June 30 set as the date by which all local work will be completed.

J. E. King, project engineer, said this morning that some members of the engineering staff already have left, many of them returning to duty in positions with the U. S. Forestry Service where they worked before being assigned to the mapping work soon after Pearl Harbor.

Mr. King will go to Denver and many of the others on the staff also will scatter through the west, he said.

The project employed 96 persons, including the permanent staff and local additional labor, for the greater part of the time since the project was set up here.

Aerial photographs made several years ago were largely used in the preparation of complete and highly accurate maps to be turned over to the War Department.

PAYS $10 FINE
Charged with disorderly conduct by Borough Officer L. E. Wisler, George "Chicken" Woodward, rear of East Middle street, was arrested Saturday evening and fined $10 by Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder.

LITTLESTOWN GARAGE SWEEP BY BAD FIRE

The parts department of the D. D. Baschoor garage, 35 East King street, Littlestown, was swept by fire Saturday morning, resulting in damage which the owner of the establishment estimated might run as high as $10,000. Insurance was carried on the property and its contents. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

The blaze, which was confined to the stock room at the front of the second floor, was discovered at about 8:30 o'clock by Mr. Baschoor, who immediately attacked the flames with a hose attached to the garage's high pressure washer system. Employees of the garage and members of the Alpha Fire Company, whose station is on the opposite side of the street assisted in quenching the flames.

Mr. Baschoor reported that when he was in the stock room at about 8 o'clock there seemed to be no indication of anything amiss, but that half an hour later smoke and flames began to issue from the second floor.

The interior of the room was badly charred and storage bins and their contents destroyed or damaged by fire, heat and smoke. The windows, with wire mesh embedded were cracked. Some smoke and water damage resulted to the office on the first floor and to other parts of the building.

The fire occurred in a section which had been added to the original garage building following a destructive blaze which swept the property on March 11, 1931.

15 BELIEVED TO HAVE DROWNED
Port Stanley, Ont., June 5 (AP)—Fifteen persons were believed to have drowned in the capsizing off this Lake Erie harbor of the motor launch Olga, crowded with Sunday excursionists. Thirteen others were rescued.

The bodies of three young women, Lillian Babcock, 23, of London, Ontario; Bernice Wood, 29, and Barbara Martin, 20, both of nearby St. Thomas, were recovered shortly after the Olga filled and partly overturned when a wave struck her broadside after the motor failed.

Twelve others were listed as missing and believed drowned: Sidney Smith, one of the Olga's operators; Stella Meays, 17, half-sister of Miss Babcock; Russell Hannant and Gordon Hannant, 8, his nephew; Jack Gardner, 12; Joe Adili, nine; Earl Book, 16; Donald Ellis, 11, and his brother, Robert, 12, all of London, Ontario; Edward Goodie and Shirley Handysides of St. Thomas, and Clifford E. Skeath, a member of the RCAF stationed there.

It was the worst pleasure launch tragedy on the Great Lakes since September 22, 1942, when 25 persons were drowned in Georgian bay.

Ejection of the Nazi vandals from the Eternal City will be accepted the world over as a guarantee of Allied ability to demolish Hitler's fortress Europe—truly a propitious introduction to the D-Day which will mark the final assault.

That seems to me to be the outstanding aspect of this grand achievement by the arms of civilization. The moral effect will be tremendous. It's specific and overwhelming answer to Der Fuehrer's wild cry of yesterday:

Empty Mouthings
The year of the invasion will bring Germany's enemies an annihilating defeat at the most decisive moment."

Three years ago, or even less time, such a declaration from the master gangster would have made many peoples cringe. But today, with his shattered legions fleeing northward from Rome before the hotly pursuing Allies, the harsh gutters which once terrified the timid are just the empty mouthings of a beaten Herr Schickelgruber.

It's worthy of note that once again Hitler has proved himself to be without respect for his own word. He had declared that German troops were not occupying Rome. Yet Allied forces had to fight their way into this city for whose preservation all civilized people were praying. Fortunately there seems to have been small damage done to the capital, according to reports thus far.

The recapture of Rome satisfies one of the two major objectives of the Allied offensive in Italy. The other was the annihilation of German Field Marshal Kesselring's armies.

Pile Roads With Dead
How well the Allies will succeed in the grim task of destroying the enemy is still to be determined. They were pursuing columns from the Nazi Tenth and Fourteenth armies northward from Rome today and continuing to take a bloody toll. The Allied air force was piling the highways with dead Germans and shattered equipment.

Some 20,000 prisoners had been taken during the 25-day old onslaught. The total of the great number of Germans killed or wounded is something which Kesselring himself can't know at this time.

Five German divisions—perhaps more than 50,000 men—have been virtually annihilated. Several others have been shattered. The greatest slaughter may be going on at this moment of debacle. Those troops which haven't yet retreated past Rome towards the north are in dire danger of being trapped. The position of the German forces which have been holding between Rome and the sea is particularly precarious.

Nazi Strength
Whether Kesselring will have enough strength left to make a stand on the Rimi-Pisa line, 160 miles north of Rome, depends on what happens on those awful highways as his men flee from death. That probably would be the line he would choose under normal circumstances, since it would guard the approaches to the French Riviera and the Balkans. He may keep on going to the main German line of the Po river.

A big question which must already be in many minds is whether the capture of Rome completes another section of the Allied jig-saw puzzle of attack on Hitler's fortress Europe, thus enabling a further operation to be undertaken. It's possible, of course, that there may be several subsidiary offensives before D-Day itself arrives.

MAP PROJECT NEARS CLOSE

Mr. King will go to Denver and many of the others on the staff also will scatter through the west, he said.

The project employed 96 persons, including the permanent staff and local additional labor, for the greater part of the time since the project was set up here.

Aerial photographs made several years ago were largely used in the preparation of complete and highly accurate maps to be turned over to the War Department.

TOKYO CLAIMS ASSAULT WILL "SEVER" CHINA

By WILLIAM PHIPPS

Associated Press War Editor

The Japanese war octopus is running against ever-heavier Allied air blows on five of its far-flung tentacles but Tokyo radio said today (Monday) an offensive which will cut China in two and foil American strategy is ready.

Allied aerial successes were reported in new assaults in New Guinea operations in the southwest Pacific, against the Kurile islands in the North Pacific and on Truk in the Central Pacific.

In the vital China theater where Chinese troops are trying to stop the Japanese advance on Changsha in Hunan province American airmen harassed the invaders.

Slight Allied Gains

And in the India-Burma theater an Allied operational summary said "overwhelming air superiority" was a major factor in placing those campaigns in favorable positions before the monsoons curtailed progress. Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten announced gains of 200 yards in bitter fighting for Japan's Myitkyina base in north Burma and Japanese withdrawal from Mamsau at the western end of the north Burma front.

While the Tokyo radio talked of Japan's readiness "to launch the most formidable offensive ever against the Allies," Nipponese troops edged closer to Changsha. The invaders' main force was 40 miles east-northeast of the city, another 25 miles north and a third 50 miles northeast.

But in northern Hunan the Chinese recaptured Ansiang in their drive on the big Japanese base of Yochow, 55 miles east. In Honan province, 400 miles north, the Chinese pressed on toward Japanese-occupied Loyang from captured Sunghsien, 45 northeast. Other Chinese troops in Yunnan province crossed the Shweli river, pushing to within 12 miles of the Japanese base of Tengchung, in their drive into northern Burma.

Truk Blasted

American bombers from the southwest and central Pacific hit Truk another one-two blow and other American planes carried their kuriles offensive into the fifth straight day, hitting Shumushu, Paramushiro and Matsua. Japan ventured 70 planes in combat over New Guinea and Truk and lost 30.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur mounted a new offensive in an attempt to wrest the important airfields from the stubborn Japanese defenders of Blak Island in the Schoutens.

PHYSICAL EXAMS

The Gettysburg draft board sent two busloads of men to Harrisburg this morning for final physical examinations preliminary to their induction into the armed forces. The buses left Gettysburg shortly after 7 o'clock.

JUNE IN WARTIME

June, the month that used to be Time of wedding bells and roses, Now through saddened eyes we see Love must wait till warfare closes. Wait or hurry! Is the cry; Sweethearts have no time to tarry; Speak your vows and say good bye! Thus it is when soldiers marry.

Time was June was young and gay, Bashful as a bride and pretty, No so light her step today, Care has come, and it's a pity! Hurry, hurry! He'll be gone! Eastward now his ship is heading, Marry him and send him on! Haste must mark the soldier's wedding.

June, the month of love, life-long, Now by hate is torn asunder, Scarcely heard are bell and song For the roar of cannon thunder, Scarcely heard the vows they speak For the anchor chains that rattle, Or the engine's farewell shriek, As the groom goes off to battle.

ON BEING YOURSELF

I can think of no better freedom, no finer independence, than merely to be oneself—in one's own home, office or town—happy and content with work and friends.

In other words, just being yourself. And this is far from easy! Other people are forever expecting us to be something for which we may be neither fitted by birth nor inclination. In fact, there are those who try to make us over, as though they were the agents of the Creator. . . .

You may not be so well understood by others if you show your colors as they are, but that should be a thing of satisfaction to you for then you invite inquiry, demonstrate character and offer yourself as a testimonial to democratic behavior.

In all emergencies, in crowds, and among strange peoples, the definite personality stands out and invites attention and respect. But the genuinely sincere person is not flattered by unusual notice, but rather complimented for his courage in remaining himself.

By remaining as yourself, under all circumstances you daily write your own autobiography, and through your speech and actions it becomes known. The moment we loan ourselves out that event becomes significant. It demonstrates the worth of independence.

The greatest heritage for any of us is this free opportunity to be what we actually have been born to be. From this basis we all may add to our stature, enlarge the area of our minds and develop a personality unique in itself.

That which makes the essays of Montaigne so interesting is the fact that he always wrote as himself, one of the frankest of all writers. He was always himself. This can be read of Thoreau, W. H. Auden and C. S. Lewis. Graham as well as Auden, and he himself and none other.

Be yourself at all times. Borrow from no one. Learn from everyone and from everywhere. Travel with open eyes, and think with that free brain of yours. You were born an original entity. Make the most of it. Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Waiting."

Molotov, Yank Braggart, Hero Of War II, Gets Silver Star... Posthumously

By HAL BOYLE

London, June 5 (AP)—Death had made a legend of Karl Warner, known to thousands of American troops as "Molotov, mayor of Brooklyn."

This incorrigible 24-year-old private, once called the "poorest example of a soldier in uniform," became the outstanding one-man army of the Tunisian campaign. Working entirely alone he developed into the army's best scout, killed at least a score of enemy officers and men in close combat and once bluffed an entire Italian company into surrendering, disarming 140 men himself without firing a shot.

He violated every military rule in the books, deserted posts, slept on guard duty, disobeyed orders and went AWOL and yet he lives in the annals of the fighting Ninth Infantry Division as perhaps its greatest front line fighter.

In a recent issue of the Stars and Stripes Staff Sgt. Charles Kiley, 195 Lexington Ave., Jersey City, N. J., gave a detailed account of the exploits of this fabulous figure.

"MAYOR OF BROOKLYN"

Twice during the North African campaign I ran across Warner. The first time he was sitting in front of a pup tent by the ancient stone Portuguese fortress at Port Lyautey in November, 1942, after a bloody 3-day clash which won French Morocco for the Allies. Warner and his Infantry buddies had stormed the fortress in hand-to-hand fighting and he had taken a fine pair of French field glasses from a slain officer.

At the entrance of his pup tent was the sign "Molotov, Mayor of Brooklyn."

The last time I saw Warner was almost six months later. He lay dead by the roadside, crumpled in his own blood after being ambushed by a German machine gunners in the cork forests of northern Tunisia only a few days before capture of Bizerte ended the campaign.

Before coming overseas Warner was the worst "bolo"—Army term for a troublesome, undisciplined soldier—in the outfit.

"CURLY" BLONDE

He was seditious about his past life but friends said he originally came from Detroit. He also was something of a race track hanger-on and because of his striking blonde hair he was known as "Curly." Another soldier gave him the moniker "Molotov" after Warner once said he was "half Russian, half Jewish."

Brawling, boasting and arrogant, Molotov was hated and despised by most of his outfit before it went into action. He showed up for induction in a camelhair coat and a white silk muffler. Army MP's several times picked him up for wearing an officer's blouse, tailor made trousers and a silk shirt.

In combat Molotov broke even more red tape than in training. He usually scouted as a lone wolf, carrying two pistols and a carbine as well as the field glasses which he kept as a trophy of his first battle.

DISCARDED HELMETS

He was absolutely fearless, refused to wear a helmet and threw away at least a dozen which were issued to him at various times.

"When I get it," he said, "a helmet won't make any difference."

At Sened Molotov took an interpreter and boldly strode up to the opposing Italian garrison. He glibly told them they were surrounded by an overwhelming American force. They were so convinced by his gab that they gave up after feeble resistance.

He helped overcome an enemy strong point at Maknassy by an audacious feat. Going 800 yards forward and with his blonde hair shining like a beacon, he leaped upon a rock and shouted "finish la guerre," "finish la guerre."

Then he dived between two boulders as all the enemy machine gunners in the neighborhood opened up on this tempting "crazy American." He noted positions of the machine guns, relayed the information back and American artillerymen promptly blew them up.

RIDDLED TO DEATH

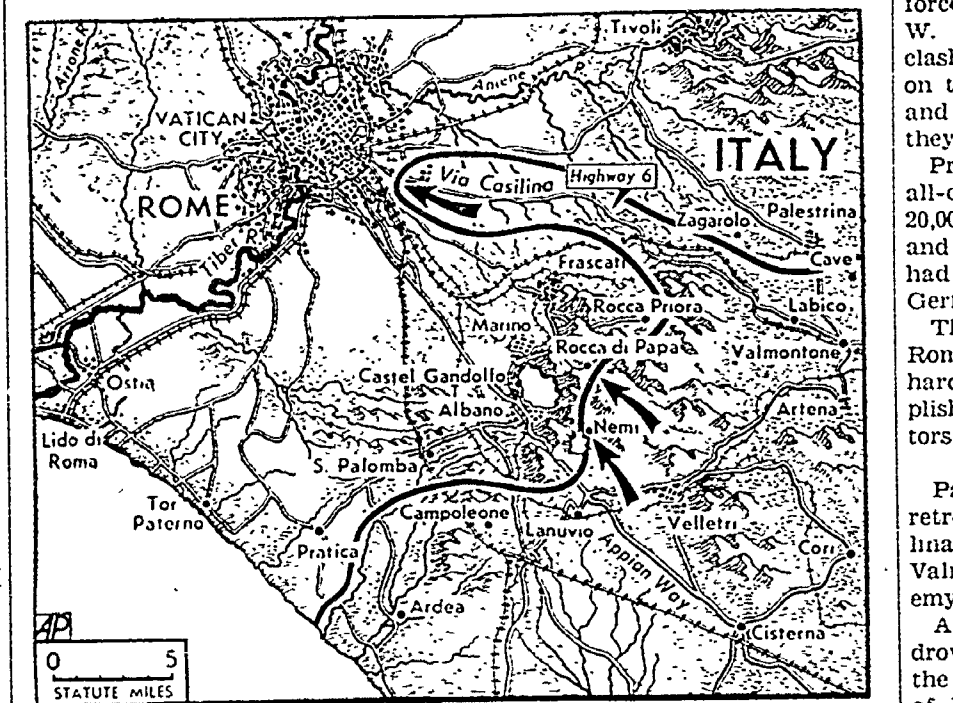

Molotov fell with a group of French native Goums storming a hidden machine gun post in the hill country past Sedjenane. They found him lying face down with the sun glittering on his blond head. Bursts of bullets had all but cut him in two at the waist. His prize field glasses had been looted by the Germans. Two charges were pending against him at his death but they wiped these off his record and gave him a Silver Star posthumously. That was where the story may make him "Molly." Always beating the rap "Molotov proved himself to be one of the most efficient and courageous."

Fifth Army

the left flank of the Fifth Army between Rome and the seacoast grew steadily.

The main escape route of these forces was lost when Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's armor and infantry clashed through the defensive screen on the outskirts of Rome yesterday and swarmed into the city, where they met only sporadic resistance.

Prisoners taken in the 25-day-old all-out offensive passed well over the 20,000 mark. In relentless strafing and bombing the tactical air force had destroyed or damaged 1,200 German trucks and other vehicles.

Boulogne and Calais Bombed By 2,200 Tons

By W. W. HERCHER

London, June 5 (AP)—Approximately 1,250 American heavy bombers and fighters—leading an Allied aerial assault of powerful proportions—against the fortified French coast—smashed military installations in the Boulogne, and Calais areas today with an estimated 2,200 tons of bombs.

This was the fourth attack in a row against the Pas De Calais, the area of France closest to England, and it came after RAF bombers attacked French coast objectives and targets in Cologne, Germany, without loss last night.

See Enemy Shells

Watchers on the English coast facing Boulogne could see enemy rocket shells rising from the ground, leaving a thin white trail of smoke and exploding high in the air.

For more than three hours powerful fleets of American and British bombers thundered across the English channel. Clouds which replaced the earlier clear sky failed to halt the offensive.

Since June began, the more than 200 miles of French coast line—bristling with German guns—has been shaken from end to end by Allied bombs.

The big British bombers made it their target for the third consecutive night last night. The U. S. Eighth Air Force has neglected strategic targets deeper in the continent for the last four days to concentrate on immediate tactical targets behind the invasion wall.

It is estimated that well over 13,000 tons of bombs have been dumped on France by American and British heavy bombers alone in the last 72 hours.

The greater part of this devastating weight of explosives has fallen in the Pas-De-Calais area and on Nazi strong points surrounding the channel ports of Boulogne, Calais, Dieppe and Dunkerque. The rest has been aimed mostly at deep and communications as road into northern France as Paris.

The principal break-through toward Rome was made in a sector defended by the Hermann Goering division, which fought vainly in North Africa and Sicily as well as stay the Allied advance.

"One American force moving forward from the southeast, generally along Highway Six, advanced nearly eight miles, then met stiff resistance from the enemy on the eastern outskirts."

"Elements severed Highway Five at the northeastern entrance to Rome. Meanwhile an advance group pushed on into the outskirts to the southeast at 9 a. m."

"Three miles due east of Rome stubborn enemy defenses were met, with leading tanks encountering many mines."

"Other Fifth Army forces meanwhile had moved forward to points four miles south of Rome and Highway Seven."

A simultaneous advance from the Alban hills northward by-passed some pockets of resistance. The towns of Grottaferrata, Marino and Genzano were taken in that area.

The British on the left flank pressed to within six miles of the Tiber below Rome and began bridging the Rio Torto.

The Eighth Army, pushing into the rugged mountains north of the Liri and Sacco valleys, encountered demolitions on a grand scale, many covered by fire from well-situated guns to prevent repairs.

Nazi Losses Mount
Driving north along Highway 82 on the right edge of the offensive front, the Eighth Army closed in steadily on Balarano, center of a strongly-fortified area.

German losses mounted hourly as the Fifth Army hammered at retreating rearguards. Allied warplanes strafed fleeing Nazis on the clogged roads north of Rome, and the mopping up of trapped enemy pockets proceeded.

There are few crossings of the Tiber below Rome over which the enemy can pull back the divisions which have been in action between the coast and the Alban hills.

The main highways 1, 2 and 3 leading north of Rome and a number of secondary roads all were hit in raids by night-bombers with virtually no opposition.

Food Poisons 25 At Wedding Dinner

Perkasie, Pa., June 5 (AP)—Twenty-five persons—including the bride, the bridegroom and the officiating clergyman—were reported recovering today from food poisoning following a wedding reception.

The reception, held Saturday night, honored Merrill Landis, Souderton, and his bride, the former Miss Peggy Fisher, Hagersville. Most of those stricken were treated at Sellersville and Lansdale hospitals.

Polish Premier Arrives Today

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk is arriving today on an official visit, to exchange views with President Roosevelt and to probe means for closing the gap between Russia and Poland.

Acting Secretary of State Stettinius announced the visit of the Polish premier in this statement: "On the invitation of this government, the Polish prime minister is arriving in Washington today on a visit of courtesy, his first trip to this country since his assumption of the premiership."

"He is expected, during his short stay, to exchange views with the President and other American officials on general European and Polish questions."

FACING SECOND MURDER CHARGE WITHIN MONTH

Mercer, Pa., June 5 (AP)—For the second time in three months, evidence on which murder charges were brought against Janice Graham, 20-year-old high school graduate, in the Everett Wilson dairy farm slayings, was scheduled to be considered by a Mercer county grand jury today.

Miss Graham, former employee at the dairy farm, is charged in separate counts with the slayings of Mrs. Katherine Wilson, 76, and Robert McKay, 70, who were killed with a shotgun, and with the death of Mrs. Helen Wilson, whose body was found in a barn, a rope knotted about her neck and a vertebra of the neck fractured.

Last March, she was charged only with the shotgun deaths of Mrs. Katherine Wilson and McKay, but a grand jury failed to indict her.

William Albert Morell, 20-year-old farmhand who was acquitted of murder charges in the same case last December, was expected to take the stand today to repeat before the grand jury testimony he brought out at his own trial. District Attorney Edwin C. Moon said.

Testimony Brings Charge

Morell, awaiting sentence on conviction of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Helen Wilson, refused to testify before the March grand jury, but it was his testimony at a trial of Miss Graham on a charge of accessory after the fact of murder late in March that led to filing of murder charges against the comely blonde farm girl a second time, Moon said.

Moon dramatically stopped Miss Graham's trial on the accessory charge after Morell had testified he was out in the barnyard and Janice was alone in the house up to the time two of them fled in McKay's car last October 7. Moon asked that the accessory charge be dismissed, and filed the charges of murder in the two shotgun slayings a second time.

Recently, the district attorney said Morell had agreed to testify before the grand jury, and the third charge

Molotov, Yank Braggart, Hero Of War II, Gets Silver Star . . . Posthumously

By HAL BOYLE

London, June 5 (AP)—Death had made a legend of Karl Warner, known to thousands of American troops as "Molotov, mayor of Brooklyn."

This incorrigible 24-year-old private, once called the "poorest example of a soldier in uniform," became the outstanding oneman army of the Tunisian campaign. Working entirely alone he developed into the army's best scout, killed at least a score of enemy officers and men in close combat and once bluffed an entire Italian company into surrendering, disarming 140 men himself without firing a shot.

He violated every military rule in the books, deserted posts, slept on guard duty, disobeyed orders and went AWOL and yet he lives in the annals of the fighting Ninth Infantry Division as perhaps its greatest front line fighter.

In a recent issue of the Stars and Stripes Staff Sgt. Charles Kiley, 195 Lexington Ave., Jersey City, N. J., gave a detailed account of the exploits of this fabulous figure.

"MAYOR OF BROOKLYN"

Twice during the North African campaign I ran across Warner. The first time he was sitting in front of a pup tent by the ancient stone Portuguese fortress at Port Lyautey in November, 1942, after a bloody 3-day clash which won French Morocco for the Allies. Warner and his Infantry buddies had stormed the fortress in hand-to-hand fighting and he had taken a fine pair of French field glasses from a slain officer.

At the entrance of his pup tent was the sign "Molotov, Mayor of Brooklyn."

The last time I saw Warner was almost six months later. He lay dead by the roadside, crumpled in his own blood after being ambushed by a German machine gunners in the cork forests of northern Tunisia only a few days before capture of Bizerte ended the campaign.

Before coming overseas Warner was the worst "bolo"—Army term for a troublesome, undisciplined soldier—in the outfit.

"CURLY" BLONDE

He was secretive about his past life but friends said he originally came from Detroit. He also was something of a race track hanger-on and because of his striking blonde hair he was known as "Curly." Another soldier gave him the moniker "Molotov" after Warner once said he was "half Russian, half Jewish."

Brawling, boasting and arrogant, Molotov was hated and despised by most of his outfit before it went into action. He showed up for induction in a camelhair coat and a white silk muffler. Army MP's several times picked him up for wearing an officer's blouse, tailor made trousers and a silk shirt.

In combat Molotov broke even more red tape than in training. He usually scouted as a lone wolf, carrying two pistols and a carbine as well as the field glasses which he kept as a trophy of his first battle.

DISCARDED HELMETS

He was absolutely fearless, refused to wear a helmet and threw away at least a dozen which were issued to him at various times.

"When I get it," he said, "a helmet won't make any difference."

At Sened Molotov took an interpreter and boldly strode up to the opposing Italian garrison. He glibly told them they were surrounded by an overwhelming American force. They were so convinced by his gab that they gave up after feeble resistance.

He helped overcome an enemy strong point at Maknassy by an audacious feat. Going 800 yards forward and with his blonde hair shining like a beacon, he leaped upon a rock and shouted "finish la guerre," "finish la guerre." Then he dived between two boulders as all the enemy machine gunners in the neighborhood opened up on this tempting "crazy American." He noted positions of the machine guns, relayed the information back and American artillerymen promptly blew them up.

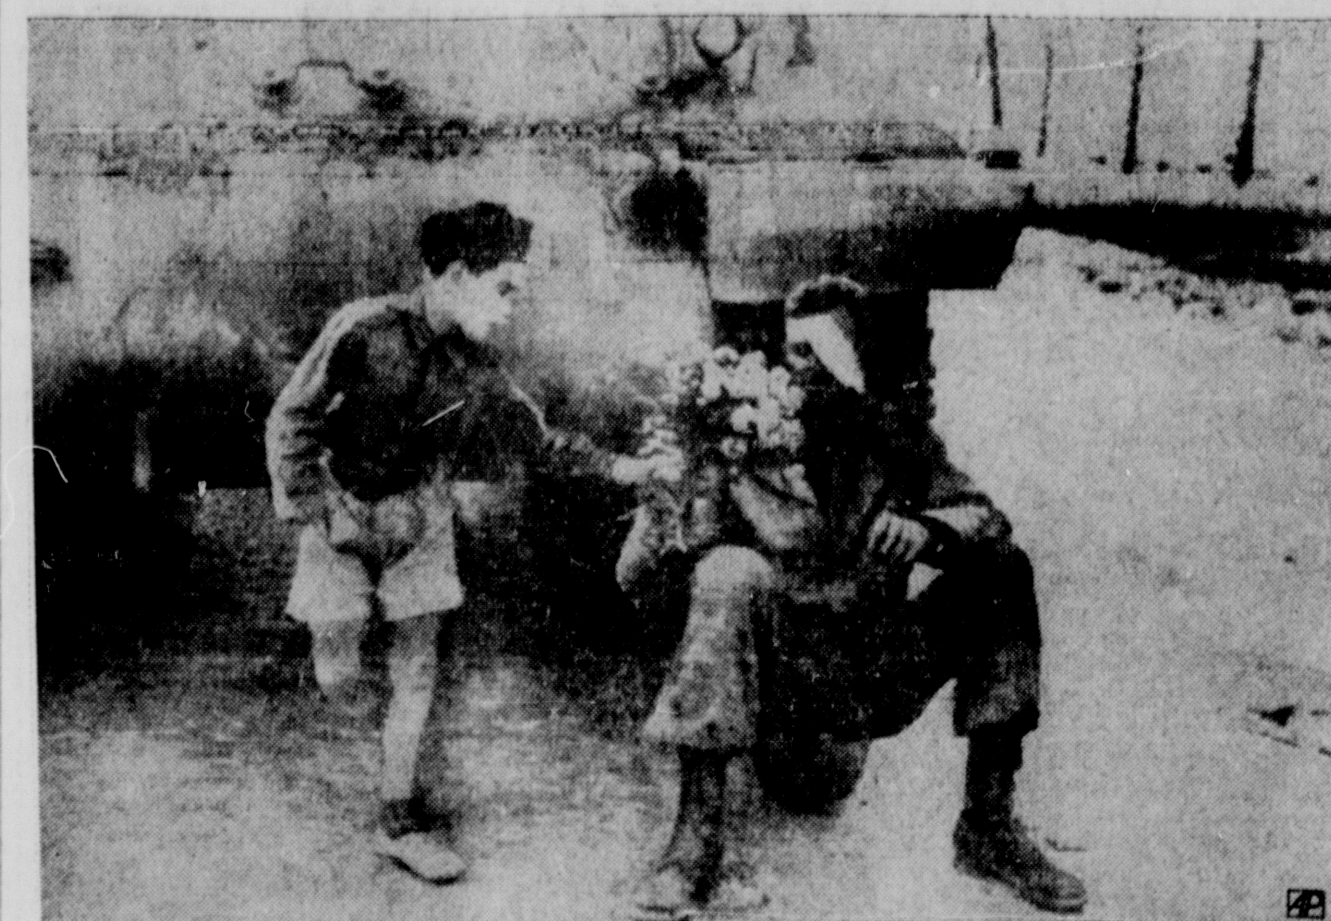

RIDDLED TO DEATH

Molotov fell with a group of French native Goums storming a hidden machine gun post in the hill country past Sedjenane. They found him lying face down with the sun glittering on his blond head. Bursts of bullets had all but cut him in two at the waist. His prize field glasses had been looted by the Germans.

Two charges were pending against him at his death but they wiped these off his record and gave him a Silver Star posthumously. That was "Molly." Always beating the rap. "Molotov proved himself to be one of the most efficient and courageous soldiers in this or any other army," said Stars and Stripes. "A soldier whose fabulous story may make him the Sergeant York of World War II."

the left flank of the Fifth Army between Rome and the seacoast grew steadily.

The main escape route of these forces was lost when Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's armor and infantry clashed through the defensive screen on the outskirts of Rome yesterday and swarmed into the city, where they met only sporadic resistance.

Prisoners taken in the 25-day-old all-out offensive passed well over the 20,000 mark. In relentless strafing and bombing the tactical air force had destroyed or damaged 1,200 German trucks and other vehicles.

The widely-acclaimed entry into Rome—climax of nine months of hard fighting in Italy—was accomplished by fresh gains in other sectors of the front.

Palestrina, Cleared

Palestrina, astride an important retreat road north of the Via Casilina four and a half miles north of Valmontone, was cleared of the enemy.

At the same time the Eighth Army drove the enemy completely out of the Sacco valley, clearing the towns of Fuggi, Piglio, Palano, Guarcino and Cave.

An official account of the drive into Rome said:

"Reconnaissance elements entered the southeastern outskirts of the city at two points about 8 a. m. and 9 a. m. respectively and a few hours later had pushed on to within its official limits.

The principal break-through toward Rome was made in a sector defended by the Hermann Goering division, which fought vainly in North Africa and Sicily as well as stay the Allied advance.

"One American force moving forward from the southeast, generally along Highway Six, advanced nearly eight miles, then met stiff resistance from the enemy on the eastern outskirts.

"Elements severed Highway Five at the northeastern entrance to Rome. Meanwhile an advance group pushed on into the outskirts to the southeast at 9 a. m.

"Three miles due east of Rome stubborn enemy defenses were met, with leading tanks encountering many mines.

"Other Fifth Army forces meanwhile had moved forward to points four miles south of Rome and Highway Seven."

A simultaneous advance from the Alban hills northward by-passed some pockets of resistance. The towns of Grottaferrata, Marino and Genzano were taken in that area.

The British on the left flank pressed to within six miles of the Tiber below Rome and began bridging the Rio Tordo.

The Eighth Army, pushing into the rugged mountains north of the Liri and Sacco valleys, encountered demolitions on a grand scale, many covered by fire from well-situated guns to prevent repairs.

Nazi Losses Mount
Driving north along Highway 82 on the right edge of the offensive front, the Eighth Army closed in steadily on Balorano, center of a strongly-fortified area.

German losses mounted hourly as the Fifth Army hammered at retreating rearwards, Allied warplanes strafed fleeing Nazis on the clogged roads north of Rome, and the mopping up of trapped enemy pockets proceeded.

There are few crossings of the Tiber below Rome over which the enemy can pull back the divisions which have been in action between the coast and the Alban hills.

The main highways 1, 2 and 3 leading north of Rome and a number of secondary roads all were hit in raids by fighter-bombers with virtually no opposition.

Polish Premier Arrives Today

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk is arriving today on an official visit, to exchange views with President Roosevelt and to probe means for closing the gap between Russia and Poland.

Acting Secretary of State Stettinius announced the visit of the Polish premier in this statement: "On the invitation of this government, the Polish prime minister is arriving in Washington today on a visit of courtesy, his first trip to this country since his assumption of the premiership.

"He is expected, during his short stay, to exchange views with the President and other American officials on general European and Polish questions."

BOULOGNE AND CALAIS BOMBED BY 2,200 TONS

By W. W. HERCHER

London, June 5 (AP)—Approximately 1,250 American heavy bombers and fighters—leading an Allied aerial assault of powerful proportions against the fortified French coast—smashed military installations in the Boulogne and Calais areas today with an estimated 2,200 short tons of bombs.

This was the fourth attack in a row against the Pas De Calais, the area of France closest to England, and it came after RAF bombers attacked French coast objectives and targets in Cologne, Germany, without loss last night.

See Enemy Shells

Watchers on the English coast facing Boulogne could see enemy rocket shells rising from the ground, leaving a thin white trail of smoke and exploding high in the air.

For more than three hours powerful fleets of American and British bombers thundered across the English channel. Clouds which replaced the earlier clear sky failed to halt the offensive.

Since June began, the more than 200 miles of French coast line—bristling with German guns—has been shaken from end to end by Allied bombs.

The big British bombers made it their target for the third consecutive night last night. The U. S. Eighth Air Force has neglected strategic targets deeper in the continent for the last four days to concentrate on immediate tactical targets behind the invasion wall.

It is estimated that well over 13,000 tons of bombs have been dumped on France by American and British heavy bombers alone in the last 72 hours.

The greater part of this devastating weight of explosives has fallen in the Pas-De-Calais area and on Nazi strong points surrounding the channel ports of Boulogne, Calais, Dieppe and Dunkerque. The rest has been aimed mostly at road and rail communications as deep into northern France as Paris.

She has been free in $10,000 bond since her preliminary hearing on the charges.

If indicted by the grand jury, trial of Miss Graham probably will start Wednesday, Moon said.

KILLED AT LETTERKENNY

Hare, commanding officer of the Army's Letterkenny Ordnance Depot, said today a board of officers had been named to make an investigation into the death of Private Pasquino Savitini, 46, member of an Italian service unit of a quartermaster battalion on duty at the depot. Colonel Hare said Savitini was crushed to death Saturday beneath a road grader.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 5 (AP)—If a red-haired, pink-faced fellow who played in six world series for the Yankees and a couple of all-star games for the American league wasn't so modest, college baseball coaches soon might be getting a letter something like this: "If you fellows are really interested in keeping college baseball alive, you'd better get together and do something about it." . . . But Yale's Red Rolfe considers himself just a beginner in the coaching ranks and thinks the veterans would ask: "Who is he to be criticizing us?" . . . Having imbibed some of Red's enthusiasm recently, this dept. is perfectly willing to do the criticizing.

PROPOSAL NO. 1
Rolfe is keenly interested in the formation of a baseball coaches' organization similar to the football and basketball coaches associations, which would help to advance the college game. . . . Such a group wouldn't have to overhaul the rules the way the others do, but it could, for example, throw its weight around a bit when football tutors insist that spring grid practice is more important than playing ball; it could support Red's recent suggestion for a National tournament to stimulate interest in college ball; it could, if necessary, struggle against the raids of professional scouts; it could help its members build stronger schedules and (by no means the least important) it could help them become better coaches.

CRITIC'S CORNER
Almost any technical discussion of baseball will bring out a few of the game's finer points that have been overlooked or forgotten even by major league managers. . . . Did you ever hear of "Rickey's run-down play" for example? . . . Shag Shaughnessy once told us about that maneuver to nab a player off third base with only one throw and added that even its inventor, Branch Rickey, had forgotten it until it was mentioned in a talkfest last spring. . . . Shag also recalls winning a pennant by teaching his pitchers how to field (this club led the league in double plays) and the details that enabled him to steal 56 bases one season in the Virginia league. . . . Wonder how many college or scholastic coaches know you can throw a better fast ball by holding it very loosely?

AND IN CONCLUSION
Many men in the colleges, and in the secondary schools that feed them have had baseball coaching thrust upon them, comments Homer Dunham, the Western Michigan college publisher who is an enthusiastic baseball booster. "They don't know the game and pay little attention to developing prospective baseballers." . . . Maybe those fellows wouldn't be interested in an organization such

Knierim Pitches Elmira To Wins

(By The Associated Press)
Relief Pitcher Ozzie Knierim spread some one-hit twirling over eight innings of a doubleheader and, as a result, the Elmira Pioneers today had climbed from seventh to fifth place in the Eastern league standings.

Knierim allowed the Scranton Miners but one scratch hit in the last five innings of the opener yesterday to take a 10-5 win for the Pioneers. Rushed back into the nightcap with the bases loaded and none out in the fifth, he tossed no-hit ball for a 4-3 decision.

Albany's Senators came from behind twice against the Utica Blue Sox, winning by identical scores of 8-3 to retain their half-game margin at the top of the standings. Six runs in the seventh gave Orrie Arntzen a victory in the nightcap.

The Williamsport Grays copped two from Wilkes-Barre, 9-1, 6-0, to replace the Barons in third place by one percentage point.

Bradford Shuts Out Loop Leaders

Buffalo, N. Y., June 5 (AP)—Bradford, in a surprising show of strength, shutout the leading Lockport Cubs 16-0 yesterday in the Pony league.

The Blue Wings, occupying the first spot above the cellar, scored ten runs in the first two innings. Pitcher Luba allowed the Cubs only seven hits.

The Hornell Pirates took their second straight victory from the Erie Sailors, 6-2. Bob Knight limited the Sailors to five hits.

Olean took the afternoon half of a double bill from Batavia, 3-1. The Clippers retaliated 5-4 in the nightcap. The Wellsville Yankees behind the five-hit pitching of left-hander Tommy Grace, left the Jamestown Falcons, 4-2.

NATS DROP TWO TO END ROUGH WESTERN TRIP

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Washington Senators, hailed as a pennant contender in the American league, are all but falling apart on their first western road trip. The Nats dropped a double-header to the Chicago White Sox yesterday, 6 to 5 in 10 innings and 9 to 1, and plummeted into the cellar.

Washington now has lost nine of ten games and before the Nats get back to the nation's capital they must play Connie Mack's Athletics five games at Philadelphia.

Ed Garnett, with four hits in the opener, and Tom Turner, with a home run and two singles in the nightcap, sparked the Sox to their double win. Jimmy Dykes' men now have won six straight and are in the first division.

The St. Louis Browns retained first place in the American loop by splitting a twin bill with the Athletics while the runnerup New York Yankees divided a bargain bill at Cleveland.

A's Divide

Bobo Newsom, aided by Joe Berry's relief pitching, twirled the A's to a 4 to 3 triumph in the opener. The Browns won the afterpiece by the same score when relief pitcher Jack Kramer singled Mark Christman home from second.

Cleveland's largest turnout of the season—27,343—saw rookie Joe Page pitch the Yanks to a 6 to 4 triumph in an 11-inning first game. The Indians took the nightcap, 4 to 3, behind the six-hit pitching of Al Reynolds and Steve Gromek.

Big Bill Lee twirled a two-hit 1 to 0 shutout against the St. Louis Cardinals to give the Philadelphia Phillies a split of their doubleheader. The National league champions won the opener, 4 to 2, behind Harry Gumbert and George Munger.

Pirates Whip Giants

Pittsburgh swept a twin bill from the New York Giants, 9 to 4 and 7 to 4. The Pirates walloped five homers in the opener, two each by Jimmy Russell and Babe Dahlgren and one by Vince DiMaggio, to give southpaw Fritz Ostermueller an easy win in his first start as a Pirate.

Cincinnati also beat the Boston Braves twice. Gerald Walker's first inning homer won the opener, 1 to 0. The Reds combined 14 hits with four Boston errors to take the nightcap, 7 to 3.

Detroit and the Boston Red Sox split their war relief twin bill. Paul Trout chalked up his seventh win for the Tigers in the opener, 2 to 1. Rookie Clem Hausman then pitched the Sox to a 5 to 1 triumph.

The Chicago Cubs beat Brooklyn, 6 to 5, in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second was called because of darkness after the 10th inning with the score tied 8-8.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 5 (AP)—If a red-haired, pink-faced fellow who played in six world series for the Yankees and a couple of all-star games for the American league wasn't so modest, college baseball coaches soon might be getting a letter something like this: "If you fellows are really interested in keeping college baseball alive, you'd better get together and do something about it." . . . But Yale's Red Rolfe considers himself just a beginner in the coaching ranks and thinks the veterans would ask: "Who is he to be criticising us?" . . . Having imbibed some of Red's enthusiasm recently, this dept. is perfectly willing to do the criticising.

PROPOSAL NO. 1

Rolfe is keenly interested in the formation of a baseball coaches' organization similar to the football and basketball coaches associations, which would help to advance the college game. . . . Such a group wouldn't have to overhaul the rules the way the others do, but it could, for example, throw its weight around a bit when football tutors insist that spring grid practice is more important than playing ball; it could support Red's recent suggestion for a National tournament to stimulate interest in college ball; it could, if necessary, struggle against the raids of professional scouts; it could help its members build stronger schedules and (by no means the least important) it could help them become better coaches.

CRITIC'S CORNER

Almost any technical discussion of baseball will bring out a few of the game's finer points that have been overlooked or forgotten even by major league managers. . . . Did you ever hear of "Rickey's run-down play" for example? . . . Shag Shaughnessy once told us about that maneuver to nab a player off third base with only one throw and added that even its inventor, Branch Rickey, had forgotten it until it was mentioned in a talkfest last spring. . . . Shag also recalls winning a pennant by teaching his pitchers how to field (his club led the league in double plays) and the details that enabled him to steal 56 bases one season in the Virginia league. . . . Wonder how many college or scholastic coaches know you can throw a better fast ball by holding it very loosely?

AND IN CONCLUSION

Many men in the colleges, and in the secondary schools that feed them have had baseball coaching thrust upon them, comments Homer Dunham, the Western Michigan college publisher who is an enthusiastic baseball booster. "They don't know the game and pay little attention to developing prospective baseballers." . . . Maybe those fellows wouldn't be interested in an organization such

PENSIVE LOSES BELMONT RACE

New York, June 5 (AP)—Pensive, Warren Wright's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, was beaten by Bounding Home, $34.70 outsider, in the $50,000-added Belmont Stakes on Saturday, and today Johnny Conn McCrory was on the pan for failing to win racing's triple crown.

Many of the crowd of 34,233, including Trainer Ben Jones, expressed belief McCrory made his move too soon and hence had nothing left when William Ziegler's Bounding Home caught and passed Pensive, the 1-2 favorite, to win the mile and a half test by half a length.

"I guess he was too anxious to please the public," declared plain Ben. He referred to two other races last week in which Pensive's stablemates, Sun Again and Mar-Kell, finished second. McCrory, who rode both, was criticized at the time for holding them too far off the early pace.

In contrast to his performance in the Derby and Preakness, when he waited until the last quarter-mile before letting Pensive out, McCrory shot the Wright colt to the front at the mile marker in the Belmont.

"I thought I had the race won at the stretch turn," he explained after the race. "When suddenly a stranger ranged alongside of me. Pensive gave all he had, but Bounding Home was too much of a horse."

Mix finely minced onion—almost shaved—with mayonnaise and peanut butter, toast bread on one side, spread on untoasted side and pop under the broiler flame until it puffs and browns slightly.

WILMINGTON IN DOUBLE VICTORY

Wilmington's Blue Rocks, unconquerable in yesterday's twin bill with York, held a full game lead in the Interstate league today—a tid margin as such things go in the hotly contested pennant race.

The Rocks' 6-4 win in yesterday's first game came on nine hits of Jim Patton—one less than the White Roses collected from Al Barillari. A Wilmington rookie, Cal Hecker, drove home the winning run in the seventh inning of the second game, which the Rocks too 4-3.

Hagerstown, previously tied with Wilmington for first place, slipped into second when the Lancaster Red Roses, after losing 16-10, came through with a 5-4 victory in yesterday's nightcap.

Third place Allentown dropped Trenton into the league cellar by sweeping a double header, 8-1 and 16-7; Pete Mazor's three-hit pitching for the Red Birds dominated the first game and George Davis tripled, double and two singles—leading in a 17-hit Allentown attack—featured the second.

In Saturday's games, Wilmington shaded York 10-5, Allentown walloped Trenton 21-9 and Hagerstown trimmed Lancaster 5-2.

Bradford Shuts Out Loop Leaders

Buffalo, N. Y., June 5 (AP)—Bradford, in a surprising show of strength, shutout the leading Lockport Cubs 16-0 yesterday in the Pony league.

The Blue Wings, occupying the first step above the cellar, scored ten runs in the first two innings. Pitcher Luba allowed the Cubs only seven hits.

The Hornell Pirates took their second straight victory from the Erie Sailors, 6-2. Bob Knight limited the Sailors to five hits.

Clean took the afternoon half of a double bill from Batavia, 3-1. The Clippers retaliated 5-4 in the nightcap. The Wellsville Yankees behind the five-hit pitching of left-hander Tommy Grace, beat the Jamestown Falcons, 4-2.

In contrast to his performance in the Derby and Preakness, when he waited until the last quarter-mile before letting Pensive out, McCrory shot the Wright colt to the front at the mile marker in the Belmont.

"I thought I had the race won at the stretch turn," he explained after the race. "When suddenly a stranger ranged alongside of me. Pensive gave all he had, but Bounding Home was too much of a horse."

Mix finely minced onion—almost shaved—with mayonnaise and peanut butter, toast bread on one side, spread on untoasted side and pop under the broiler flame until it puffs and browns slightly.

RADIO PROGRAMS

New York, June 5 (AP)—Again each of the networks will have a "bond" day when the Fifth War Loan gets under way this month. The various days will be spaced throughout the drive as in previous campaigns.

The first is on NBC June 13, followed by MBS on June 17, CBS June 20 and the Blu June 24. On those days each network will direct its entire schedule to bonds, using both special announcements and programs. Several hour-long broadcasts are to be included.

In addition to the special days, the networks also are planning other features in connection with the campaign which opens June 12 and closes July 8.

Army Flyer Dies In Bedford County Crash

Middletown, Pa., June 5 (AP)—An investigation was opened by Army Air Force officers today into a Bedford county plane crash which took the life of a fighter pilot.

The Middletown Air Depot said the plane, on a routine flight from Patterson Field, Ohio, to Newark, N. J., crashed into Blue Knob mountain in Union township, near Pavia. The name of the pilot was not immediately announced.

RAW MILK INCREASES

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Higher price ceilings, based on increased cost of raw milk, go into effect next Thursday for processors of bulk condensed milk in Pennsylvania, 12 other northeastern states and the District of Columbia.

NATS DROP TWO TO END ROUGH WESTERN TRIP

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Washington Senators, hailed as a pennant contender in the American league, are all but falling apart on their first western road trip. The Nats dropped a double-header to the Chicago White Sox yesterday, 6 to 5 in 10 innings and 9 to 1, and plummeted into the cellar.

Washington now has lost nine of ten games and before the Nats get back to the nation's capital they must play Connie Mack's Athletics five games at Philadelphia.

Ed Garnett, with four hits in the opener, and Tom Turner, with a home run and two singles in the nightcap, sparked the Sox to their double win. Jimmy Dykes' men now have won six straight and are in the first division.

The St. Louis Browns retained first place in the American loop by splitting a twin bill with the Athletics while the runnerup New York Yankees divided a bargain bill at Cleveland.

A's Divide

Bobo Newsom, aided by Joe Berry's relief pitching, twirled the A's to a 4 to 3 triumph in the opener. The Browns won the afterpiece by the same score when relief pitcher Jack Kramer singled Mark Christman home from second.

Cleveland's largest turnout of the season—27,343—saw rookie Joe Page pitch the Yanks to a 6 to 4 triumph in an 11-inning first game. The Indians took the nightcap, 4 to 3, behind the six-hit pitching of Allie Reynolds and Steve Gromek.

Big Bill Lee twirled a two-hit 1 to 0 shutout against the St. Louis Cardinals to give the Philadelphia Phillies a split of their doubleheader. The National league champions won the opener, 4 to 2, behind Harry Gumbert and George Munger.
